TO THE P U B L I C K.

IF exact Plans had been made and preserved of all the great Cities in the World, the Disputes concerning their different Magnitudes might soon have been determined. We should have been able to compare together not only those which flourished at the same Time, but Babylon and Rome might have been collated with London and Paris. The latter Satisfaction, however, is not now to be hoped for with any Degree of Certainty: But it is in our Power to ascertain the Claims of modern Cities, which, for want of taking the proper Method, have 'till this Time been continual Subjects of Dispute.

AFTER all the Demonstrations which Englishmen think they have given to the contrary, the French still retain their Prejudices in Favour of their beloved Paris. The Abbé le Blanc, the last Gentleman of that Nation who has visited us and published his Remarks, in spite of his good Sense, cannot help discovering his Bias in this Respect *. Our Rivals have challenged to the Proof, and hitherto with good Reason, having several large, beautiful, and it is supposed exact Plans of their Capital, while we had not of ours any one that was tolerable. This Complaint was some Years ago made by the Ingenious Mr Maitland, whose Words, as they are on several Accounts to our Purpose, we shall here transcribe.

‘ I ONCE intended to annex a modern Plan of London to this Work; but as the Plans, from which I must have taken the same, are all very defective, and perhaps the worst of the Kind extant, the best of them would rather be a Disgrace than an Embellishment to the Work: I therefore thought fit to omit it, as it could be but of little Use to the Reader. And as it cannot be reasonably imagined, that the vast Expence, which would necessarily attend the making a new and accurate Survey of this great City and Suburbs, can be raised by Subscription; such an Undertaking is only fit for the Citizens in their publick Capacity, or some generous and publick spirited Person of Fortune, who has the Honour and Grandeur of this incomparable Metropolis at Heart †’.

THE Difficulties foreseen by this Gentleman, in the making of a new and accurate Survey, and which absolutely deterred him from the Attempt, we have ventured to encounter with, and would hope have in a good Measure surmounted. The Point of Comparison may be now fixed by any unprejudiced Examiner. Mr Maitland did not before scruple to give it greatly in Favour of London, not only with Respect to Paris, but to all the other great Cities in the World, Antient and Modern. Of the Antient we have nothing here to say: But if Paris, among the Modern, must yield her the Pre-eminence, no other City in Europe will dare to dispute it.

ABSTRACTED from this political Consideration, how much the Publick must be interested in the Publication of an exact Plan of the Metropolis of this Kingdom, is evident from the Encouragement that has been given to those imperfect and inaccurate Performances that have been hitherto sold, and copied from one another with a Multiplication of their Faults. As a Guide to Strangers, the most common Use of a Map or Plan, such Degrees of Exactness are necessary, as may shew the true Bearings, Extent, and Proportions, of the several Streets, Lanes, Alleys, &c. as well as the Figure and Dimensions of remarkable Buildings. No Place or Object of Importance should be omitted, either in the Draught or the Description: In a Word, the Ground-Plot should be so laid down, that the most incurious Observer cannot well mistake when he looks for Information. How little of this Exactness is to be found in former Plans of London, the Publick must be left to determine: And by the same Judge must the Merit of this new Attempt, after all the Labour that has been bestowed on it, be also fixed. The Undertakers can only say, that they have used their utmost Endeavours to make it answer both Ends; to be a sure Guide to the Street-Traveller, and an accurate Scale to the political Calculator.

THE particular Uses that may be made of this Plan, in tracing out the Boundaries of Parishes, measuring the Contents of Estates, and for various other Purposes equally advantageous and entertaining, are so obvious, that it seems needless to enumerate them. Private Gentlemen and publick Companies, will perceive how much it concerns them to be possessed of such a Companion and Assistant.

THIS Plan is contained in 24 Sheets of Imperial Paper, being near 13 Feet in Length, and six Feet and three Quarters in Depth; and extends from West to East, on the North Side, from beyond Marybone Turnpike, by Tottenham-Court, the New-River-Head, Hoxton, and Part of Bethnal Green to near Bow: From thence, Southerly, by the easternmost Parts of Mile-End and Lime-House, cross the River Thames to Deptford Road; from whence the Southern Side extends Westerly, by Newington and Vaux-Hall, to that Part of the River of Thames which is next to Chelsea-College; which Building, together with some Part of Knights-Bridge and Hyde-Park, is included in the Western Limit, which closes with the Northern beyond Marybone.

THE Space comprised within this Compass, is near 6 Miles from West to East, and a little more than 3 Miles from North to South, and contains about eleven thousand five hundred Acres of Ground: And, as it is laid down by a Scale of two hundred Feet to an Inch, it admits not only of an exact Description of all the Squares, Streets, Courts, and Alleys, in their true Proportions, but likewise of the Ground-Plots of the several Churches, Halls, publick Buildings, and considerable Houses and Gardens; and likewise comprehends a Survey of so much of the Country, with the several Roads and Foot-Paths crossing it, and remarkable Objects contained in it, as lies within the above-mentioned Bounds.

THE Method followed in making this Survey, has been by ascertaining the Position and Bearings of the Churches and other remarkable Buildings, by Trigonometrical and other Observations from the Tops of Steeples, Towers, and other Places, whence such Buildings are visible; by taking the Angles at the Corners of Streets, &c. with proper Instruments, and measuring the Distances by the Chain; And by comparing, from Time to Time, the Position of Places, found by this last Method, with the general Observations before-mentioned, so as to correct the one by the other.

Tho' Berlin, in Comparison of London, be but a small City, the making a Plan of it is at this Time thought worthy the Care of a Minister of State, and the Patronage of a King who is an avowed Encourager of useful Undertakings. Our List of Subscribers will shew that we have not proceeded without Countenance from the Great, and thro' their Favour, and the generous Assistance of the Citizens themselves, we have done what Mr Maitland thought was impracticable by a Subscription. At our first setting out, the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, and the Worshipful Court of Aldermen, gave such a Sanction to our Design, and took such a Method to facilitate the Execution of it, that we should be ungrateful not to preserve their Recommendation on that Occasion with Thanks, as we found it of very considerable Advantage to us in our Survey.

Tuesday the 16th Day of October, 1739, and in the 13th Year of the Reign of King GEORGE the Second of Great Britain, &c.

THIS Court being informed, that Mr John Rocque, and Mr John Pine, are engaged in an Undertaking to Survey, in a most exact and accurate Manner, and to Engrave a Plan of the Cities of LONDON and WESTMINSTER, to be in the same Manner, and of the same Size with a Drawing this Day produced to the Court by the said Mr Pine, which, when well executed, this Court are of Opinion will be of publick Use and Benefit; and being willing, as much as lieth in them, to give all due Encouragement to so laudable an Undertaking; do hereby recommend it to the several Deputies, Common-Council-Men, and other Citizens, and Inhabitants of this City, to be assisting to the said Mess. Rocque and Pine, in the Prosecution of so useful a Design; and the said Deputies and Common-Council-Men of the several Wards of this City, are desired to give Directions to their respective Beadles, to inform the said Mess. Rocque and Pine, from Time to Time, as they shall apply, of the Boundaries and Extent of each Ward, that the Liberties of this City may be the more exactly set out and ascertained, in the said intended Plan.

BUT

BUT not satisfied with this Encouragement to the Work, we were willing to have the Operation itself approved by such Judgments as in Matters of this Nature we knew would be decisive. In this also we were so happy as to succeed, as appears by the following Testimony and Recommendation.

May 17, 1740.

HAVING seen what is already done of the New Survey of London, undertaken by Mr Rocque and Mr Pine, having been informed of their Manner of proceeding, and having been present at the Taking some remarkable Measures, and at the verifying of several of the principal Angles; we are enabled to declare, That we are satisfied with the same, and that we think we may justly recommend it as a Work of great Use, likely to be performed with Judgment and Exactness, and well deserving Encouragement.

M. FOLKES,
P. DAVALL.

AND when thro' the great Number of Difficulties we met with in the Progress of the Work, and our firm Resolution to sacrifice every other Consideration to Care and Accuracy in the Compleating of it, we found it impossible to keep within the Limits of Time we had at first prescribed Ourselves; the same Gentlemen, with great good Nature, took upon them to give the Publick those Reasons, which from them had infinitely more Weight than they could have had from Ourselves.

WE cannot, (say they) in Justice to Mr Rocque and Mr Pine refuse to acquaint the Publick, that the Finishing of their intended Plan of London and Westminster, has only been delayed by the more rigid Examination to which they have been desirous to submit the same: And as this has been done with the sole View of presenting it more perfect to the World, they humbly hope their Subscribers will not be displeased with them on that Account.

THEY have in our Presence taken the true Bearings of a very great Number of Steeples, and other remarkable Places, from different Stations, with an excellent Instrument of Mr Sisson's; and they have had the proportional Distances of a great many Points in different and very distant Parts of the Town computed trigonometrically, to which Computations they have strictly confined their Map. They have also taken the best Methods they were able to make Use of, for the adjusting to it a true Scale: And whereas some of the Distances calculated by Trigonometry, were found to differ somewhat, though not very considerably, from the same Distances before collected from the Mensuration of the Streets; they have not thought much of the Trouble of drawing the main Plan over again, before they began to engrave; and which last they have deferred, till we could venture to give them this additional Recommendation, by which we assure those it may concern, that we are well satisfied the Work will be carefully performed, and therefore well deserves their Favour and Encouragement.

London, July 24,

M. FOLKES,
P. DAVALL.

Not only our Care, but the Manner in which we employed it, is in this additional Recommendation so fully set forth, that it is needless for us to say more with Respect to the Drawing. But we were not less attentive to other Particulars. Every Part was not only actually surveyed, but the Name of each Spot was collected on the very Place, and not taken from any former Account. By this Means we have obviated all the Difficulties that might have arisen with Regard to Spelling or Pronunciation, and reduced the whole to the Standard of Custom, which is the only certain Rule on such Occasions. But at the same Time these Names were compared with those in former Accounts, and where any great Disagreement was found, Enquiry was made into the Cause of it, and the Truth cleared up with as much Exactness as possible.

When the Plan was nearly finished, it was, by publick Advertisement, submitted to the Inspection of all the Curious; and whatever by them was thought wrong, was again carefully examined on the Spot, and such Alterations were made, as upon the Examination appeared to be just and necessary. At the same Time proper Persons went on purpose through every Part of the Town, each carrying with him that Portion of the Plan which related to his own Division, and making a final Comparison between the real State and Appearance of every Place, and the Representation of it upon Paper.

These are the Methods that have been made Use of, in order to come as near the Truth as might be expected in a Work of such infinite Labour and Variety. To be every where absolutely correct, supposing no Alteration had been made in the Face of Things between the taking our Survey of each Part and the Publication of the Whole; every one conversant in Matters of this Nature will readily allow was next to impossible: Much less could the utmost Perfection be attained, so as to continue any Length of Time, when there is in some Part or other continual Changes in the Figures and Dimensions of Places, made by new Buildings. But when these Considerations are taken in, if we are found, upon an impartial Examination, to have done as well as the Nature of the Work, and the Errors to which human Judgment and Industry will be always liable, might be thought to admit, we shall not doubt of giving general Content.

To conclude: Tho' the particular Alterations in such a great City will always be many, there is room to think, from the vast Increase of Houses within a few Years, that the general Bounds of this Capital may be fixed for many Years to come. This renders the present a very desirable Time for taking a Survey of it, as there is no Probability that it will of a sudden become either greatly erroneous or greatly imperfect.

Explanation

EXPLANATION of the REFERENCES in the INDEX.

THE Plan being contained on 24 Sheets of Paper, is divided into 24 equal Parts, 8 in Breadth, and 3 in Depth: each Division contains one whole Sheet and no more, and is subdivided into 9 equal Parts, 3 in Breadth, and 3 in Depth: The Lines that form these Subdivisions are not engraved, in order to keep the Plan clear, and prevent Confusion; but they may be easily formed by the Eye; however, to give a clearer Idea of these subdividing Lines, they are drawn and marked below, and are likewise engraved faintly on the contracted Sketch of the Plan: The Divisions are marked in the Margin, at Top and Bottom with Letters, and on the Sides with Figures. In order to find any Place, observe, that in the Index, the first Figure and the Letter refer to the whole Sheet or Division, and the following Figure to the imaginary Subdivision, where the Place sought for is to be found; and observe where there are more References than one, the Place runs into the several Divisions marked.

Example, You would find Great Ormond Street, near Red Lyon Street, which is marked in the Index 1 C 5, first find the Division 1 C, and then on that Division form the 9 imaginary Subdivisions, and on the 5th of them (which is in the Centre) you will find the Place sought.

Or, If you would find Cornhill, which is marked 2 E 2, first find the Division 2 E, then form the imaginary Subdivisions, and on the second you will find Cornhill.

Or, Mary le bone which is marked 1 A 6; first find the Division or Sheet 1 A, and then the imaginary Subdivisions, and on the 6th you find St Mary le bone.

Whenever you are disappointed in finding a Place under the Head you expect, look for it under the other Heads: i. e. if you look for a Place under the Head Alleys, and do not find it there, look for it under the Head Courts, or Yards, &c. Or whenever you look for a Place with the Addition of Great or Little, or New or Old, &c. and cannot find it so, look for it in it's Place without the Epithet.
